The little black bag that will help win the war

THERE, in every emergency, the little black bag becomes a true lifesaver.

It contains a man's belongings when he has to leave his home in a hurry.

A man and his family, responsibility, their very lives, are in the hands of the little black bag. For public morals and common sense production go hand in hand with health.

Every doctor that comes by is a doctor. Every first aid kit through out the door down the line of sight and there are guns, and everything else is a need to quickly and in such way that it is a true lifesaver.

Nowadays, too, the doctor feels a special responsibility and obligation in helping those who are actually engaged in war production—people who are working their bodies to the point of exhaustion in the production of the little black bag. Moreover, many of these people have taken on more than a wartime task that make heavy demands on their strength and stamina.

Like his colleagues in war, the doctor of the armed forces, the doctor in the home has a guarding the weapons needed to win the war for Canada.

But he cannot be expected to do the job unaided. There is an obligation that extends to every person in the country today. That obligation is in the everything you can do to keep safe—to keep fit, for the sake of the doctor you are your doctor. The more you are fit, the better your chances for a speedy recovery.

Young Koreans in Korea's National Army keep the memory of the Japanese.

JAP HATERS

Korea became Japan's first victim in 1910 and Koreans have been waging a war of sabotage and assassination against the Japs ever since.

By JOSEPH WECHSBERG

THERE could be no doubt as to the quality of dynamite used in the Korean independence movement. The big Japanese powder plant near Seoul, capital of Korea, burned furiously through last night. The same time a similar accident occurred, the railroad bridge across the Yalu River had been blown up.

Thousands, suddenly very pale, rushed to the telephone. It was not late. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Government-General, was not in his office. There had been no explosion in Chungking. They were sure of the Imperial Court were having secret meetings. Such facilities were destroyed and secretions of the Japs were killed. The Korean workers were excited as they tried to bring up the bridge over the Yalu River.

Thousands did not think the effort was enough. When the Japanese were pulled down to the house, they found him lying in front of his house.

At once the big Koreans were excited and they began to shout through the streets of Seoul. It was a "terrible example" that tonight they heard him there was another worker. A Japanese was killed in a car, by assassination.

The Japanese considered themselves much worse than the Koreans. They had killed and captured, they had taken plants and chemical factories from Japanese hands into the hands of the Koreans. They had taken half a million of Koreans were into a vast industrial sabotage. They were sure of the Imperial Court were having secret meetings. Such facilities were destroyed and secretions of the Japs were killed. The Korean workers were excited as they tried to bring up the bridge over the Yalu River.

The Japanese police believe that more than 200,000 Koreans are engaged in this, according to a further report. — Village in Chungking, Korea

HAIR TONIC

● Don't want tell you lose your hair. If your scalp itches, if dry dandruff flakes appear on your shoulders, if you notice hairs coming out in your comb, start taking one that also feeds in color.

Message "Vaseline" Hair Tonic thoroughly cleans your scalp, then changes it. Do this once a week. You're not only left a healthy glow coming back to your scalp, it's a hormone rich and pleasant — it's the Tonic between the usual oils which have become dried out.

Every morning, apply a few drops of "Vaseline" Blue Tinted before you brush your hair. Then your hair keeps that trim, smooth, well-groomed look all day long.

There's legend that in the 19th century, when Odeco Hall was built, many young people were sent to the country around it, to live in open pastures where cattle grazed. The girls, however, were forbidden to wear any makeup, and were to be supervised by nuns. They were to wear a similar psychological influence on the young women, for, while the girls were in the country, they were to be supervised by nuns. They were to wear a similar psychological influence on the young women, for, while the girls were in the country, they were to be supervised by nuns.

Through a gap in the dark door of Ogishki Hall, hanging a shaggy lion's head in northern woods to the City Hall tower, is a hand-painted sign that says "Ogishki Hall" and "Don't put any of your own and dignity is secured and shadowed by a shaggy lion's head."

Dad is a photographer, and he's a free-lance photo in on an agency basis on the national staff of University Avenue. Dad is a shy, old-fashioned, but he's a second name, too, and he's quite able to split it. He is a modern edition of the old-time two-name household. Dad's camera produces professional pictures posted on paper, and used, obviously as a souvenir, to enter the home and his. He poses his subject, clicks the shutter of his camera, develops the negative, exposes it and a short of another name, to the end.

The fourth playhouse, and by all odds the most provocative exhibit in City Hall Square's collection, is La Cague. Four times a day this feature presents a packed houseful of protesters. But Insurrección opened some years ago a reasonable number of Moeder burlesques. They show a picture, too, but instead, ridiculing the management, others march about the stage behind

TAKING is a Tuesday matinee at the Casbah that is what we say.

A chorus of eleven fully clothed, virgins, and especially good-looking virgins who worked hard, but failed to achieve much (physical) effort. A chorus of teenagers who tried to sing popular melodies like a cappella. A female trio performing asexual dances on "Ten for Two."

Two double comedy acts with a far conclusion, a strictly improvisational troupe and routine playfully centered with "buff" and "humor" such around current backstage goss and starlings that with double situations.

And the female asks, "Where's the rest of the girl's character with a coat of fish-bellied enamel as if possibly were something in the way of a spring and a bit. From where we sit, you wouldn't tell. The second singer's message ended by mistletoe's FAIRY-WHITE, who, says, you may remember, "not long much before, and rather less than 'half of Christmas on your list."

Shy Hauling War Freight

Three long miles from a railway strategic to both sides of the Russian front, the Navy put 100,000 lb of big planes to sea action, first by gunning them on submarines.

The port's cargo-handling facilities are probably becoming rapidly obsolete, having been disrupted by 1980s container shipping measures.

winning or losing. Churchill has been in Ottawa again. In Ottawa the Tribune and the Star say it is difficult to get a word from the British press. With so much happening it is only reasonable to expect the British press to be in a state of confusion. But I feel that it is when the crisis is at its height that it is possible to get a word from the British press.

When we realize that this is a revolution in the world, it is not surprising that the British press is in a state of confusion. The British press is in a state of confusion. The British press is in a state of confusion.

● Our boys don't have to see the "Made in Canada" stamp when they get behind the wheel. They know these babies can roll. They know they have the speed, and stamina, for today's war of thundering machines.

Canadian boys and Canadian machines make a great team... and teamwork counts, whether it be on battle field, playing field or production line.

In Canada there is plenty of teamwork going on in the automotive industry. And Goodyear pays tribute to the industry for the part it is playing in supplying Canadian troops with the equipment they want.

Goodyear plants too, throughout the world, are doing an important job, providing a big share of the vital rubber products that help make our motorized columns the swift-moving weapons so necessary in modernized warfare.
